Basic Premise:

Since Allan Kardec optimistically predicted in 1857 an end to wars and conflict in the conclusion of his book The Spirit's Book, even a cursory examination of history since 1857 shows that the exact opposite of an end to conflicts, war and seriously negative human behavior has happened...

Central Questions of the BICS Challenge

All 67 mediums (distributed among 5 teams) were tasked with answering the same four questions:

1. Since 1857, has the Other Side failed and Mankind failed to achieve good progress in securing human spirituality? If so, are bad spirits and bad humans winning?
2. Explain to people on Earth why the Other Side has not failed in fostering spiritual evolution.
3. What difference has the Other Side made since 1857 in influencing humans to accelerate their spiritual progress?
4. To what extent have earthbound spirits since 1857 impeded, sabotaged or distorted the progress of human spiritual evolution?

Study Focus:

- The study aimed to explore whether mediums can convey wisdom and knowledge from the spirit realm unrelated to personal matters, such as information about the future of humankind or the survival of our species.
- This is a departure from traditional studies of mental mediumship, which typically focus on communication from discarnate entities related to personal survival after death.

Methodology:

- Thirteen certified mediums were enlisted to independently provide mediumistically obtained wisdom about the afterlife, the nature of reality, and the future of humankind.
- The study sought to identify consistencies in the reports from these mediums as evidence of genuine communication from the spirit realm.

Challenges in Evaluation:

- Evaluating mediumistic pronouncements about non-personal wisdom is complex, as it is challenging to determine whether the information is genuinely from the spirit realm or influenced by the mediums' beliefs or external sources.
- The study faces uncertainties about the source and nature of the conveyed wisdom, including the possibility of shared confusions among discarnate communicators and unconscious telepathic communications among the mediums.

Issues of Validity:

- There is uncertainty about whether the communicated wisdom constitutes genuine knowledge rather than opinion or conjecture, especially on debated topics such as human-caused climate change or the fate of humankind.
- The study recognizes the difficulty in defining what counts as wisdom or knowledge and lacks a decision procedure for validating claims on such matters.

Implications:

- The study's ultimate purpose is to yield insights of importance to humanity, irrespective of the ontological level from which the insights originate.
- The study acknowledges the intrigue in obtaining wisdom consistencies from independent mediums, despite the inherent challenges and uncertainties in evaluating their validity.

Conclusion:

- While some consistencies emerged among the independent medium responses, none were judged as particularly compelling or impressive.
- The study refrains from reaching conclusions regarding predictive information, highlighting the need for physical time to determine the veracity of the statements.

Summary of Study:

- A team of mediums from FFF reported unexpected insights about the afterlife, aiming to fill gaps in our understanding of life after death.
- The study involved a meticulous selection process of mediums by the Forever Family Foundation.

Methodology of the Study:

- Sixteen mediums were initially selected for the study, but it was later narrowed down to seven based on the quality of their responses.
- Mediums were asked a total of fourteen questions via email and were blind to the specific design protocol.

Communication Protocols:

- Mediums were cautioned to connect with specific discarnates, guides, or higher beings and avoid letting their own biases interfere with the process.
- They were encouraged to provide evidential information whenever possible and were allowed to skip questions if no response was received.

Findings and Observations:

- The study was primarily exploratory, aiming to test the abilities of the mediums in a novel protocol.
- Although the request for responses that could be validated was considered unrealistic, the study anticipated at least some promising responses.

Insights from the Study:

- The mediums' responses aimed to provide insights into the afterlife and spiritual evolution, pushing them outside their usual comfort zone of personal readings.
- The study recognized the limitations and challenges of eliciting specific and verifiable information from mediums.

Mediums' Selection and Evaluation:

- The mediums were rigorously evaluated through a five-step certification program conducted by the Forever Family Foundation.
- Only ten percent of the mediums evaluated achieved certification, demonstrating the stringent selection process.

Mediums' Performance and Validation:

- The certified mediums were found to produce highly accurate and specific readings, with consistency in their abilities noted over the years.
- Several certified mediums have also participated in formal scientific research, further validating their abilities.

Challenges and Considerations:

- The study acknowledged the potential limitations of mediums in providing specific and verifiable information outside their usual realm of practice.

Main Findings:

- The study engaged nine gifted mediums to connect with disembodied intelligences and found that energies from the spirit world are actively attempting to assist humankind in their spiritual development.
- The majority of the communications received were consistent with the idea that discarnate beings are working to help advance human spirituality despite the impact of fear and human free will.

Contradictory Results:

- Results contradict the assumption that the Other Side has failed to improve human spiritual evolution over the past 166 years.
- The novel methodology used in this study was a promising approach to examining thematic content from mediums and their guides.

Study Design:

- The study involved two phases, where the first phase comprised an extended screening procedure to identify mediums for the second phase.
- Phase 2 included nine gifted mediums who completed a series of three readings to access information from discarnate sources using pre-determined questions.

Materials Used:

- The study used a demographic form, Tellegen Absorption Scale, Psychological Flexibility Scale, and Openness to Experience Scale to assess the participants.
- Eighteen mediums were initially identified as potential participants, with the majority being female and white.

Procedure:

- Phase 1 participants completed questionnaires and participated in a one-hour Zoom interview to determine their skills and abilities for Phase 2.
- The transcriptions of the interviews were manually checked and edited for accuracy before being organized and submitted for natural language processing.

Participant Data:

- Six of the participants reported having been diagnosed with a mental health disorder, and four reported having been diagnosed with two or more mental health disorders.
- All Phase 1 participants received $200 for their time, and there were no significant medical or mental health concerns that would rule them out for participation in Phase 2.

Researcher's Conclusion:

- The results indicated that the Other Side has not failed to promote human spiritual evolution in the past 166 years.
- The study provided a novel approach to assessing the validity of information received from discarnate entities by examining within and between subject consistency of talented mediums.

Mediums and Communication Abilities:

- Selection of 9 mediums for Phase 2 based on self-reported ability to connect with discarnate higher intelligences, verbalize received information, and validate their history of brought forth information.
- Each of the 9 mediums completed three readings, where they connected with guides from the Other Side and reported responses.

Data Analysis:

- Differences between groups were assessed, indicating no significant differences in demographic or mediumship characteristics.
- Statistical testing revealed a trend indicating that all Phase 2 participants reported doing mediumship readings in a professional capacity compared to 6/9 Phase 1 participants.

Language Analysis:

- Verbalizations from participants were analyzed using natural language processing (NLP) to summarize Phase 1 and Phase 2 responses.
- GPT 4 was chosen as the most appropriate AI generative model for the complexity and length of the input text.

Correlation Analysis:

- Significant positive correlations were found between TAS Total Absorption scores, Creativity subscale scores of Openness to Experience, and other mediums characteristics with self-report scale scores.
- Negative correlations were observed between the total number of years engaged in psychic/mediumship practice and the presence of one or more psychiatric diagnoses.
